The distinction between as and as though (which is interchangeable with as if) primarily concerns whether you are comparing two real actions or describing a hypothetical/imaginary situation.

1. The Use of "As"

In a comparative context, as is a conjunction used to indicate that an action is performed in a specific way or to show that two things are equal in manner.

Function: It introduces a clause of manner, typically referring to a real or established fact.

Key Idea: "In the way that."

Example: Please perform the task as I have instructed you.

(Fact: I have given instructions, and you should follow them in that exact manner.)

Example: He speaks as a leader should.

(Fact: There is a standard way a leader speaks, and he meets it.)

95. She treated/ me as though / an old friend.

A. She treated

B. me as ~~though~~

C. an old friend

D. No error

The distinction between as and as though (which is interchangeable with as if) primarily concerns whether you are comparing two real actions or describing a hypothetical/imaginary situation.

2. The Use of "As Though" (or "As If")

As though is used to describe a situation that may not be true, is improbable, or is a subjective impression. It creates a comparison to an imaginary state.

Function: It introduces a hypothetical comparison.

Key Idea: "In a way that suggests..." (even if it isn't true).

The Subjunctive Mood

As though often triggers the subjunctive mood when the situation is contrary to fact.

This means using were instead of was, regardless of the subject.

Example: He acts as though he were the king. (Reality: He is not the king; it is a hypothetical comparison.)

96. I'll go with you / as long as/ I won't have to sing.

A. I'll go with you

96. I'll go with you / as long as/ I won't have to sing.

A. I'll go with you

B. as long as

C. I won't have to sing

D. No error

96. I'll go with you / as long as/ I won't have to sing.

A. I'll go with you

B. as long as

C. I won't have to sing

D. No error

1. I don't have to sing

Tense: Present Simple

Meaning: This refers to a current state or a general fact regarding obligation.

- Absence of Obligation: It means that, as of right now, there is no requirement or rule forcing you to sing.
- Example: "The music teacher said my voice needs rest, so I don't have to sing in today's rehearsal."

2. I won't have to sing

Tense: Future Simple (Won't = Will not)

Meaning: This refers to a future state or a prediction about a lack of obligation.

- Future Relief: It means that at a specific point in the future, the requirement to sing will be removed or will not exist.
- Example: "Once the new soloist arrives next week, I won't have to sing the lead part anymore."
- Key Idea: It describes a change that will occur later.

97. She'll pay you / as soon as she / receive the parcel.

A. She'll pay you

98. I don't have a car / and I don't want / one as well.

A. I don't have a car

B. and I don't want

C. one as well

D. No error

98. I don't have a car / and I don't want / one as well.

A. I don't have a car

B. and I don't want

C. one ~~as well~~ either

D. No error

The error lies in the third part of the sentence: "one as well." In English grammar, we use different words to express "also" or "in addition" depending on whether the clause is affirmative or negative.

1. Affirmative Sentences (Too / As well)

We use too or as well at the end of a positive statement.

Example: "I have a car, and I want a bike as well."

Example: "She is a teacher, and her husband is a teacher too."

2. Negative Sentences (Either)

We use either at the end of a negative statement to mean "also not." Using "as well" or "too" in a negative construction is grammatically incorrect.

Example: "I don't have a car, and I don't want one either."

Example: "He isn't coming, and she isn't either."

98. I don't have a car / and I don't want / one as well.

A. I don't have a car

B. and I don't want

C. one ~~as well~~ either

D. No error

Context	Preferred Adverb	Correct Usage
Positive (+)	As well / Too	I like tea, and I like coffee as well .
Negative (-)	Either	I don't like tea, and I don't like coffee either .

Sentence Type	Conjunction/Adverb	Example
Positive	...as well / ...too	He likes mangoes and apples as well .
Negative	...either	He doesn't like mangoes or apples either .
Negative (Alternative)	Neither...	He doesn't like mangoes; neither does he like apples.

Percent (per cent) Vs. Percentage

- These two terms are not interchangeable. “Percent” means “per hundred” and can either be written out or expressed by the symbol %. ...
- “Percentage” is used to refer to a general relationship rather than a specific measure
- A large percentage of the people voted, but only 20 percent of the votes were counted.

Percent (per cent): Singular or Plural?

“Percent” is used with both singular and plural verbs. It usually takes a plural verb when followed by “of” plus a plural noun, and takes a singular verb when followed by “of” plus a singular noun.

Example: “Sixty percent of the cookies (c) were eaten, but only twenty percent of the milk (un) was drunk.”

Percent (per cent): Singular or Plural?

- Forty percent of the students are in favour of changing the policy.
- Forty percent of the student body is in favour of changing the policy.

Percentage: Singular or Plural?

- If the noun that follows 'a percentage of' is plural, use a plural verb after it.
- Only a small percentage of people are interested in politics.
- A high percentage of married women have part-time jobs.
- Most of the coffee we produce is for export;
a high percentage goes to the US.
- The percentage of school leavers that go to university is about five per cent.

Percentage: Singular or Plural?

- If a goalkeeper saves 96 out of 100 shots, his save percentage is 96 percent.
- The percentage of university students and others who are building their careers with an intent to pursue entrepreneurship is higher than ever before.
- The percentage of positive tests for the last full week was at 5%, following four weeks at 6%.
